Lauren A. Kelley was born in Springfield, Massachusetts, and received her bachelor's degree in child psychology and development from Regis College. She worked as a psychologist with handicapped children for four years before earning her master's degree in international economics and business from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. She worked for six years as an economist at DRI/McGraw-Hill.

Laurie is a recognized world leader in patient education on bleeding disorders. She founded LA Kelley Communications in 1990 when she found no practical parenting or consumer information on hemophilia. She is the author of eleven books on bleeding disorders, including the world's first parenting book on hemophilia, the world's first book on von Willebrand disease, and the world's first educational books for children with hemophilia. Laurie is founder and editor of the Parent Empowerment Newsletter, the oldest hemophilia newsletter in the US. She publishes articles constantly about all topics related to bleeding disorders.

Laurie is a polished and engaging speaker. She travels frequently, both nationally and internationally, to empower families, NGOs and medical groups through lectures and interactive workshops. Since 2004, she has become a leading patient educator in insurance reform in the US.

Laurie is committed to providing humanitarian aid to the developing world. She founded Project SHARE, a humanitarian program that donates millions of dollars worth of blood-clotting medicine annually to patients in developing countries.

Laurie is also founder and president of Save One Life, a nonprofit child sponsorship agency for children with bleeding disorders in developing countries. She travels extensively to Central and South America, the Caribbean, Africa, Eastern Europe and Asia at her own expense to help impoverished patients with bleeding disorders and the nonprofits that serve them.

Uniquely, since she founded her company in 1990, Laurie's books, services and humanitarian programs are offered free of charge to patients, clinics and nonprofits worldwide.

Laurie is the mother of three children: son Tommy, age 26, who has hemophilia A, and daughters Tara and Mary, ages 23 and 20. Laurie is a fitness enthusiast and enjoys traveling, rock climbing, rafting, skydiving, cycling, history, and playing classical piano.
